The Association of Primate Veterinarians (APV) recognizes the importance of international collaboration. The APV Education Committee will present one Travel Grant Award ($1500 plus waived APV Workshop registration fee) to a member of the European Primate Veterinarians (EPV). The Travel Grant Awardee will present an oral case report, clinical investigation, or research project at the APV Workshop, at the APV Workshop, October 19-22, 2022, at The Lexington Griffin Gate Marriott Resort & Spa in Lexington, KY. The award will help defer the cost of travel to the APV Workshop, but the recipient is responsible for all travel arrangements and costs exceeding $1500.

Applicants must have a DVM, VMD, equivalent degree from a veterinary medical college, or PhD and be an EPV member.

Applicants must submit the following:

- A CV, two pages or less
- An essay, less than 400 words, describing the applicant’s experience working with nonhuman primates and interest in primate medicine, care, or research and impact that attending the APV workshop will have on their professional development
- An abstract, less than 300 words, describing the clinical case, research, or management-related issue to be presented
- Brief letter of recommendation from an EPV member describing the candidate’s experience in nonhuman primate medicine, care, or research

Research projects or case reports impacting the husbandry, clinical management, and/or welfare of nonhuman primates are highly desired. Applicants are encouraged to review the APV/EPV Travel Grant Rubric for additional information.

Applicants will be reviewed by the APV Education Committee. Incomplete applications will not be evaluated. The submission deadline is Friday, July 1, 2022. For more information, please contact Alexandra Smith (alexandra.smith@abbvie.com)

To apply, visit https://www.primatevets.org/workshop for online submission.